

What are Maps?

What's the BIG deal?

- Maps are representations of places. A map is NOT a place.
- People who create maps select and organize the features of territory to include in their maps.
- People's purposes, knowledge, and perspective (or point of view) shape their maps.
- People's maps of the same place can look very different.